Plaintiff respectfully submits this memorandum of law, the Statement of Material Facts pursuant to Local Rule 56.1, the declaration of Roberto Bautista Franco Baccanelli, dated October 30, 2007 (the “Baccanelli Dec.”) with annexed exhibits, and the declaration of Regina Alter, dated November 15, 2007 (the “Alter Dec.”) with annexed exhibits, in support of his motions (i) for summary judgment as against defendant the Republic of Argentina (“Argentina”) pursuant to Rule 56 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (“FRCP”) and Local Rule 56.1; and (ii) to strike Defendant’s First Request for the Production of Documents, dated July 16, 2007 (the “Requests”), pursuant to Rules 26(c), 26(d) and 34(b) of the FRCP.¹

Preliminary Statement

The following undisputed facts establish that plaintiff is entitled to summary judgment:

- Plaintiff purchased certain bonds that were issued by Argentina (the “Bonds”);
- The obligations of Argentina with respect to the Bonds are “unconditional.” See Lightwater Corp. Ltd. v. The Republic of Argentina, No. 02 Civ. 3804, 02 Civ. 3808, 02 Civ. 5932 (TPG), 2003 WL 1878420, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 14, 2003) (the “Lightwater Decision”); EM Ltd. v. The Republic of Argentina, No. 03 Civ. 2507 (TPG), 2003 WL 22120745, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 12, 2003) (the “EM Ltd. Decision”); Mazzini v. The Republic of Argentina, No. 03 WL 743090 (TPG), 2005 WL 743090, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. March 31, 2005) (the “Mazzini Decision”); Mazoral v. The Republic of Argentina, No. 04 Civ. 3313 (TPG), Slip Op. at 2 (S.D.N.Y. May 4, 2006) (the “Mazoral Decision”); Moldes v. The Republic of Argentina, No. 04 Civ. 6137 (TPG), Slip Op. at 2 (S.D.N.Y. May 4, 2006) (the “Moldes Decision”); Prima v. The Republic of Argentina, No. 04 Civ. 1077 (TPG), Slip Op. at 2 (S.D.N.Y. May 4, 2006) (the “Prima Decision”); Morata v. The Republic of Argentina, No. 04 Civ. 3314 (TPG) Slip Op. at 2 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2006) (the “Morata Decision”); Sauco v. The Republic of Argentina, 05 Civ. 3955 (TPG) Slip Op. at 2 (S.D.N.Y. May 15, 2006) (the “Sauco Decision”); see also Allan Applestein

TTEE FBO D.C.A. Grantor Trust v. The Republic of Argentina, No. 02 Civ. 4124 (TPG), 2003 WL2274762, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 22, 2003) (the “DCA Decision”);²

- Argentina defaulted on its obligations with respect to the Bonds. See Lightwater Decision at *2, 4; see also EM Ltd. Decision at *2; and
- This Court has jurisdiction to grant plaintiff summary judgment.

In addition, at a March 28, 2006 hearing, the Court directed that for purposes of summary judgment, plaintiffs need only produce current statements or similar documents (the “March 28th Order”).³ See March 28th Tr. at 9:20-21, 16:15-23, 17:12-15, 25:15-20.

Pursuant to the March 28th Order, annexed to the plaintiff’s declaration are documents demonstrating his current ownership of the Bonds. Notwithstanding the foregoing, in the Requests, Argentina seeks the production of documents that far exceed those documents the Court held necessary to demonstrate plaintiffs’ beneficial ownership.

Accordingly and as more amply demonstrated below, there are no genuine triable issues of fact, and the unimpeachable documentary evidence establishes that plaintiff is entitled to summary judgment and the Requests should be stricken.

The Undisputed Facts

A. The Bonds

Argentina issued the Bonds pursuant to a USD Discount Bond and Par Bond Fiscal Agency Agreement, dated as of April 7, 1993, and the exhibits annexed thereto (the “DPB FAA”), among others.⁴

In that agreement, Argentina expressly agreed (i) to submit to the jurisdiction of ³ A true and correct copy of the Cilli v. The Republic of Argentina, 04 Civ. 6594 (TPG), Hr’g Tr., March 28, 2006 (the “March 28th Tr.”), is annexed to the Alter Dec. as Exhibit 14.

⁴ True and correct copies of the DPB FAA and Exhibit 1 thereto (Form of Discount Bond and Par Bond) and the exhibits thereto are annexed as Exhibits A and B to the Complaint, respectively.

this Court; (ii) that service of process could be made on it by serving its agent, Banco de la Nacion Argentina, here in New York City; (iii) to waive any claim of sovereign immunity; and (iv) that each of the agreements and the bonds issued pursuant thereto would be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New York. See Compl. Ex. A § 16; Ex. B § 6.07.

Argentina further agreed that its failure to pay interest when due and/or the declaration of a moratorium on its payment obligations would constitute an event of default, entitling each bondholder to institute a lawsuit. See Compl. Ex. B at Ex. 1 thereto, pp. 24-26.

Section 10 of the of the Form of Discount Bond and Par Bond further provide that following either of the foregoing events of default, “registered holders of 25% or more in aggregate outstanding principal amount of the [DPB] Bonds may, by written demand to Argentina at the office of the Fiscal Agent, declare the [DPB] Bonds immediately due and payable,” together with all accrued interest. See Compl. Ex. B at Ex. 1 thereto, p. 26.

B. Argentina’s Default On The Bonds

On December 24, 2001, Argentina defaulted on the Bonds when it “declared a moratorium on payments of principal and interest on [its] external debt,” including all payments due plaintiff. Mazoral Decision at 2; Moldes Decision at 2; Prima Decision at 2; Morata Decision at 2; Sauco Decision at 2; Lightwater Decision at *2. Since declaring the moratorium, Argentina has further defaulted by failing to make any payment of interest or principal on any of its foreign debt, including the Bonds here at issue. In fact, Argentina concedes that “since December 2001 it has not paid interest or principal” in connection with bonds issued pursuant to the DPB FAA. Ans. at ¶ 11.

This Court has already determined that Argentina’s obligation to pay these amounts is unconditional, and that Argentina’s failure to do so constitutes events of default. See Mazoral Decision at 2 (finding that the Court has jurisdiction and that plaintiffs have unconditional legal right to collect the unpaid interest and to accelerate on bonds issued under the 1993 FAA and the 1994 FAA, among others); Moldes Decision at 2 (finding that the Court has jurisdiction and that plaintiffs have unconditional legal right to collect the unpaid interest and to accelerate on bonds issued under the 1994 FAA, among others); Prima Decision at 2 (finding that the Court has jurisdiction and that plaintiffs have unconditional legal right to collect the unpaid interest and to accelerate on bonds issued under the 1993 FAA and the 1994 FAA, among others); Mazzini Decision at *3 (finding that the Court has jurisdiction and that plaintiffs have unconditional legal right to collect the unpaid interest and to accelerate on bonds issued under the 1993 FAA and the 1994 FAA, among others); Lightwater Decision at *4 (finding Argentina's obligation unconditional after it had defaulted and bondholder plaintiffs had accelerated obligations on bonds). See also EM Ltd. Decision at *2 (finding "nothing in the record to distinguish this case as to EM's unconditional legal right to collect on the bonds").

By reason of Argentina's default, and in accordance with Section 10(e) of the Form of Discount Bond and Par Bond, on or about February 13, 2007, the Fiscal Agent communicated to the holders of the DPB Bonds that the Fiscal Agent received written communication from the holders of more than 25% of the principal amount outstanding of the DPB Bonds and that those holders had declared all of the DPB Bonds to be immediately due and payable ("the "Notice"). See Compl. Ex. C; Baccanelli Dec. at ¶ 9.

C. Plaintiff's Proof of Ownership

In the March 28th Order, this Court addressed the issue of bondholders' proof of ownership, among other things. The Court directed that in order to demonstrate ownership bondholders need to submit a declaration attesting to their ownership of the Bonds together with a copy of a current account statement (or similar document).

Accompanying this brief, plaintiff submits his declaration with the following annexed exhibit: a September 30, 2007 account statement from Santander Private Banking in the name of plaintiff Baccanelli, demonstrating Baccanelli's current ownership of Bonds issued by Argentina pursuant to the DPB FAA in the aggregated principal amounts of (i) $341,000, having the ISIN No. XS0043118172 and CUSIP No. P04981BQ1; and (ii) $972,000 having the ISIN No. XS0043119147 and CUSIP No. P04981BN8.

D. Concurrent Litigations Involving Argentina's Debt

In related cases, this Court has granted summary judgment to holders of Argentine bonds for the principal amounts of their bonds plus accrued interest. See Mazoral Decision at 16; Moldes Decision at 22; Prima Decision at 96; Morata Decision at 121; Sauco Decision at 15; Mazzini Decision at *3; Lightwater Decision at *6; EM Ltd. Decision at *2; DCA Decision at *2. This Court concluded that Argentina "defaulted on the bonds when it ceased to pay the interest." Lightwater Decision at *4. Accordingly, Argentina "now owes the three plaintiffs principal and accrued interest." Lightwater Decision at *4; see also EM Ltd. Decision at *2. Most recently, the Court ruled that the plaintiffs in the Mazoral, Moldes, Prima, Morata, Sauco and Mazzini actions are each entitled to summary judgment.⁵ See Mazzini Decision at *4; March 5th Tr. at pp. 16 and 33.

In granting plaintiffs summary judgment, the Court rejected each of the defenses asserted by Argentina, including: (i) champerty (as defined by N.Y. Jud. L. § 489 (McKinney 2003)); (ii) the Act of State Doctrine; (iii) abuse of rights; and (iv) lack of standing. The Court denied Argentina's contention that with additional discovery it might possibly develop a set of facts showing that the Bonds were purchased primarily for the purpose of commencing a lawsuit in order to support a champerty defense. See Lightwater Decision at *4-5; Mazzini Decision at *3-4; see also EM Ltd. Decision at *2. In addition, the Court rejected Argentina's abuse of rights defense, and Argentina conceded that the Act of State Doctrine was not a defense to plaintiffs' claims. See Lightwater Decision at *5. Moreover, the Court first rejected and later recognized Argentina's waiver of the affirmative defense that plaintiff bondholders lack capacity to sue, provided the Court determines that plaintiffs, in fact, are beneficial holders. See March 28th Tr.; Mazoral Decision at 15; Moldes Decision at 21; Prima Decision at 95; Morata Decision at 119; Sauco Decision at 14.

Thus, as this Court has already concluded, bondholders, such as plaintiff herein, are entitled to summary judgment. There are no genuine issues of material fact with respect to Argentina's default. Nor, as this Court has already determined, are there any valid defenses. Accordingly, summary judgment is warranted.

Argument

POINT I

PLAINTIFF SHOULD BE AWARDED SUMMARY JUDGMENT

The standards for summary judgment are well known to this Court and need not be repeated here at length. “Summary judgment is appropriate when there is no triable issue of material fact and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Slattery v. Swiss Reinsurance Am. Corp., 248 F.3d 87, 91 (2d Cir.), cert. denied, 534 U.S. 951 (2001); Weinstock v. Columbia Univ., 224 F.3d 33, 40 (2d Cir. 2000); Branch v. Sony Music Entm’t, Inc., No. 97 Civ. 9238 (TPG), 2001 WL 228108, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 8, 2001), aff’d, 2002 WL 992289 (2d Cir. 2002).

The Supreme Court has held summary judgment to be proper even if there are disputes of material fact, when the evidence offered in opposition to the motion does not create a “genuine issue” of fact requiring trial. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 247 (1986). Thus, the party opposing summary judgment may not rely on mere allegations to create the existence of genuine issues of material fact. Summary judgment is to be denied only if there is a proffer of some evidence that actually puts a material fact in genuine dispute. See Celotex Corp. v. Cartett, 477 U.S. 317, 321 (1986); see also Podell v. Citicorp Diners Club Inc., 112 F.3d 98, 101 (2d Cir. 1997) (a party will not survive a motion for summary judgment by merely offering conclusory allegations or denials, “but must bring forward ‘some affirmative indication that his version of relevant events is not fanciful’”) (citations omitted); Quarles v. Gen. Motors Corp., 758 F.2d 839, 840 (2d Cir. 1985); Branch, 2001 WL 228108, at *2 (“A litigant may not defeat a motion for summary judgment solely through unsupported assertions or conjecture”) (internal quotations omitted). In this regard, summary judgment is “an integral part of the Federal Rules as a whole, which are designed ‘to secure the just, speedy and inexpensive determination of every action.’” Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 317, 327 (1986) (citing Fed. R. Civ.

Summary judgment is particularly appropriate where, as here, the issue before the Court is the interpretation of an unambiguous contract. See Omni Quartz, Ltd. v. CVS Corp., 287 F.3d 61, 64 (2d Cir. 2002) (“The proper interpretation of an unambiguous contract is a question of law for the court, and a dispute on such an issue may properly be resolved by summary judgment”); Combustion Eng’g, Inc. v. Imetal, 158 F. Supp.2d 327, 331 (S.D.N.Y. 2001) (“Summary judgment is appropriate in a breach of contract action where the language of the contract is unambiguous, and reasonable persons could not differ as to its meaning”), aff’d in part, vacated in part, 2002 WL 1333624 (2d Cir. 2002). As this Court has held, “[i]t is a basic principle of contract law that absent fraud, bad faith, gross mistake, or public policy considerations, contractual terms that are clear and unambiguous should be enforced.” Int’l Bus. Machs. Corp. v. Burlington Air Express, Inc., No. 98 Civ. 2503 (TPG), 2000 WL 890196 (S.D.N.Y. July 5, 2000).

Furthermore, under New York law, the holder of a debt instrument establishes a prima facie entitlement to summary judgment by demonstrating the existence of the debt obligation and the defendant’s default. See Dvoskin v. Prinz, 205 A.D.2d 661, 613 N.Y.S.2d 654, 655 (2d Dep’t 1994) (“A party establishes her prima facie entitlement to judgment on promissory notes as a matter of law by producing the promissory notes executed by the defendant and by establishing the defendant’s default thereon”); see also Sterling Nat’l Bank & Trust Co. of New York v. Fid. Mortgage Invs., 510 F.2d 870, 874-75 (2d Cir. 1975) (affirming summary judgment for creditor on note where existence of obligation and non-payment were undisputed); Valley Nat’l Bank v. Greenwich Ins. Co., 254 F. Supp.2d 448, 450 (S.D.N.Y. 2003) (“In cases involving notes and guaranties, the Court has held that a plaintiff establishes its prima facie entitlement to summary judgment by establishing the execution of the agreement at issue and nonpayment thereunder”) (internal quotations omitted).

A. Plaintiff Has Established His Entitlement To Summary Judgment

This Court has already granted summary judgment in the Lightwater, EM Ltd., Mazzini, Mazoral, Moldes, Prima, Morata and Sauco matters, among many others – actions addressing identical issues and involving the same defendant herein. Accordingly, plaintiff is entitled to the application of offensive collateral estoppel in order to foreclose Argentina “from relitigating an issue that [it has] litigated unsuccessfully in another action.” LeBlanc-Sternberg v. Fletcher, 67 F.3d 412, 433-34 (2d Cir. 1995) (citing Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore, 439 U.S. 322, 326 n.4 (1979)), cert. denied, 518 U.S. 1017 (1996); see also Tri-Ex. Enter. v. Morgan Guar. Trust Co., 596 F. Supp. 1, 7 (S.D.N.Y. 1982) (“It is undisputed that a litigant who was not a party to the first action may assert collateral estoppel offensively in a subsequent proceeding against the party who lost the decided issue in the prior case”).⁶

However, even if this Court were willing to permit Argentina to relitigate, summary judgment is nevertheless plainly warranted. Indeed, plaintiff has proven both of the elements of his prima facie case for summary judgment. Argentina cannot credibly dispute that

⁶ The Second Circuit established a four-part test to determine if the doctrine of collateral estoppel applies:

- (1) the issues in both proceedings must be identical, (2) the issue in the prior proceeding must have been actually litigated and actually decided, (3) there must have been full and fair opportunity for the litigation in the prior proceeding, and (4) the issue previously litigated must have been necessary to support a valid and final judgment on the merits.

Gelb v. Royal Globe Ins. Co., 798 F.2d 38, 44 (2d Cir. 1986), cert. denied, 480 U.S. 948 (1987); see also LeBlanc-Sternberg, 67 F.3d at 434 (jury determination that village had violated the Fair Housing Act has collateral estoppel effect in equitable suit brought by the government seeking injunctive relief under the Act); Beck v. Levering, 947 F.2d 639, 642 (2d Cir. 1991) (affirming application of the offensive collateral estoppel doctrine), cert. denied, 504 U.S. 909 (1992); Benjamin v. Coughlin, 643 F. Supp. 351, 357 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (applying the doctrine of offensive collateral estoppel where the issues presented were identical to those previously litigated in state court); In re Ivan Boesky Sec. Litig., 848 F. Supp. 1119, 1124 (S.D.N.Y. 1994) (concluding that the doctrine of collateral estoppel may be used offensively to preclude defendant from relitigating issues previously litigated and resolved). It cannot be disputed that Argentina was given a full and fair opportunity to litigate the issue of whether or not it is in default on its debt under the terms of the 1993 FAA, 1994 FAA and the FRB Agreement, respectively, and this Court has ruled that it is. See Lightwater Decision at *1; EM Ltd. Decision at *2. That prior determination fully supports judgment on the merits here.

each of the applicable agreements gives rise to binding obligations to pay plaintiffs in accordance with the provisions thereof. Nor can Argentina deny that it is in default. See Lightwater Decision at *1; and EM Ltd. Decision at *2. Indeed, as set forth above, Argentina concedes that “since December 2001 it has not paid interest or principal” in connection with bonds issued pursuant to the DPB FAA. Ans. at ¶ 11. Furthermore, plaintiff’s declaration and annexed exhibit indisputably demonstrate his current ownership of the Bonds. Accordingly, plaintiff has proven both of the elements of his prima facie case for summary judgment.

B. Argentina’s Affirmative Defenses Are Without Merit

Argentina asserts the following affirmative defenses: (i) failure to state a claim; (ii) the Act of State Doctrine; (iii) “plaintiff is not acting in good faith in commencing and prosecuting this action” and, therefore, “is barred from enforcing any rights it may otherwise have;” (iv) unclean hands; (v) the doctrine of abuse of rights; (vi) champerty; and (vii) lack of standing and/or capacity to sue. However, as Argentina concedes, its Second and Fifth Affirmative Defenses fail, because those affirmative defenses have already been rejected by this Court. See Ans. at p. 3 n.1; see also Lightwater Decision at *5-6 (overruling Argentina’s affirmative defenses of international comity, the act of state doctrine and abuse of rights); EM Ltd. Decision at *4 (same). Furthermore, the Court recognized that Argentina agreed to waive the affirmative defense that plaintiff bondholders lack capacity to sue, provided the Court determines that plaintiffs, in fact, are beneficial holders. See March 28th Tr.; Mazoral Decision at 15; Moldes Decision at 21; Prima Decision at 95; Morata Decision at 119; Sauco Decision at 14. None of Argentina’s remaining defenses shield it from liability either.

1. The Failure To State A Claim Defense

Argentina’s First Affirmative Defense for failure to state a claim is unavailing. Certainly, plaintiff has alleged all the requisite elements under New York law for a claim of breach of contract, including the existence of the contract, his own performance, Argentina's breach and damages. See Rexnord Holdings, Inc. v. Bidermann, 21 F.3d 522, 525 (2d Cir. 1994).

2. The Champerty Defense

The champerty defense in Section 489 of the Judiciary Law has similarly been rejected by this Court. Indeed, there is nothing in the record to suggest that plaintiff purchased his Bonds for anything other than a normal investment purpose. In Lightwater, this Court concluded that "where a bond is purchased with the intent to collect on that bond, the statute is not violated even though there is also an intention to collect by lawsuit if necessary." Lightwater Decision at *4; see also EM Ltd. Decision at *3. Most recently, this defense and the request to seek discovery with respect to this defense were rejected in the Mazzini Action. See Mazzini Decision at * 3-4; March 5th Tr. at pp. 32-34; see also Mazoral Decision at 15; Moldes Decision at 21; Prima Decision at 95; Morata Decision at 121; Sauco Decision at 15.⁷ Here, the facts are no different than in those cases where the Court rejected the champerty defense. Accordingly, here too, the defense is meritless.

3. The "Unclean Hands" Defense

In addition, Argentina's defense of "unclean hands" also fails as a matter of law, because it is not available in an action seeking money damages. See, e.g., Aniero Concrete Co., Inc. v. New York City Constr. Auth., No. 94 Civ. 3506, 2000 WL 863208, at *10 (S.D.N.Y. June 27, 2000) ("unclean hands is an 'equitable defense to equitable claims,' not to actions at law which seek money damages") (citations omitted); 518 East 80th Street Co., LLC v. Smith, 251 A.D.2d 215, 216, 674 N.Y.S.2d 680, 681 (1st Dep't 1998) (tenant's affirmative defense of unclean hands, based on allegations of breach of lease and the landlord's stated desire to evict, was an equitable one that could not be asserted against the landlord's causes of action for rent arrears and legal fees). This defense must also be rejected as a matter of fact, because under the unambiguous terms of the DPB FAA, plaintiff is entitled to payments of principal and interest that are due and payable.

⁷ Argentina's defense of lack of good faith is no more than a restatement of the champerty defense and is therefore equally without merit.

POINT II

ARGENTINA'S DISCOVERY REQUESTS SHOULD BE STRICKEN

As the foregoing illustrates, Argentina's Requests should be stricken pursuant to Rules 26(c), 26(d) and 34(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Plainly, Argentina has served the Requests to further burden plaintiff and delay these proceedings.

As set forth above, this Court has narrowed the types of documents that plaintiffs are obligated to produce in order to demonstrate their ownership of the Bonds, which documents plaintiff has attached to his accompanying declaration.

Notwithstanding, Argentina seeks documents in the Requests that are beyond those prescribed by the Court. Specifically, the Requests seek the following:

[a]ll confirmations and account statements concerning [plaintiff's] purchase or acquisition of Republic Bonds. If [plaintiff] acquired Republic Bonds at any time prior to December 2001, all confirmations and account statements establishing proof of beneficial ownership as of December 2001.

This Request is clearly far broader than what this Court has held to be sufficient to demonstrate plaintiff's ownership of the Bonds. Accordingly, and for this reason alone, the Requests should be stricken.

Moreover, Argentina has offered no rationale for why such broad discovery has any relevance to the question of whether plaintiff owns the Bonds on which he has sued. Indeed, when faced with virtually identical requests in related proceedings, this Court summarily denied the requests. See, e.g., Mazoral Decision at 16; Moldes Decision at 22; Prima Decision at 96; Morata Decision at 121; Sauco Decision at 15; Cilli v. The Republic of Argentina, 04 Civ. 6594

(TPG), Slip Op. at pp. 17-18 (S.D.N.Y. March 20, 2006);⁸ Mazzini Decision at *3-4; Lightwater Decision at *4; EM Ltd. Decision at *2; and March 5th Tr. at pp. 30-32. Likewise here, the Requests should be stricken.

Furthermore, Argentina's discovery requests seek discovery with respect to the champerty defense. As set forth above, however, the Court repeatedly rejected that defense. Accordingly, the Court should not allow Argentina to delay these proceedings by permitting it to take the unbridled and baseless discovery it now seeks.

Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, it is respectfully submitted that plaintiff's motions for summary judgment and to strike defendant's discovery requests should be granted in their entirety.
